An important baseball deal was effected yesterday, by which William Ewing, the old captain of the Giants, is exchanged with the Cleveland club for George Davis, one of the most brilliant young players in the country. John M. Ward, the new manager of the New-York club, telegraphed Davis to meet him at the St. James Hotel yesterday. The appointment was kept, and after a short interview Davis formally signed a New-York contract. It now remains for the Cleveland club to come to satisfactory forms with Ewing.
